PRETTY FOR THE SMALL DAUGHTER

PATTERN 9826

9826

Mothers who like to dress their small daughters after the simple smart English manner will love this design. At first glance, nice as it looks, there seems to be very little to it. But look again—isn't that dimple yoke attractive, ending in two demure little scallops that button down in the front? And the side pleats, which make it such a pleasant frock in which to romp are also decorative in a charmingly discreet manner. The sleeves may be long or short, and a hidden charm is a pair of more than ordinarily well-cut bloomers. Make it of cotton or sheer wool.

Pattern 9826 may be ordered only in sizes 1, 2, 4, 6, 8 and 10. Size 4 requires 2¾ yards 36 inch fabric.

Send FIFTEEN CENTS in coins or stamps (coins preferred) for this pattern. Be sure to write plainly your NAME, ADDRESS, the STYLE NUMBER and SIZE.

Complete, diagrammed sew chart included.

Send your order to Sewing Circle Pattern Department, 232 West Eighteenth Street, New York, N. Y.

SELECTING A ROUTE

"We need a leader!" said the excited man.

"We've got plenty of leaders," answered Senator Sorghum, "what you want to do is to get up a good road map and show us where and how it is safe and proper to travel."

SAFE ON EARTH

A pedestrian crossed a traffic-filled street while looking up at an airplane overhead. Three buses shaved him so closely that his beard didn't appear again for a week, the wind from six passing cars raised the nap on his last year's suit, one five-passenger car removed the shine from the back of his left shoe, and the drivers of seven others of assorted makes, while stripping their gears in an effort to avoid him, also stripped their vocabularies of every known high-powered adjectives. After stumbling over the curbstone on the further side of the road the pedestrian was heard to murmur: "My gracious, those aviators lead dangerous lives.—Utica Observer Dispatch.

"Is That Your Candidate?" I Inquired. "Not Any More," Was the Surly Reply.

The Conscientious Candidate

By JAMES J. MONTAGUE

Sitting by himself in a hotel room I found an old friend of earlier days, chewing a toothpick, and gloomily regarding a cheering crowd outside the open window where a man was standing in an automobile and addressing an obviously approving crowd.

"Is that your candidate?" I inquired.

"Not any more," was the surly reply.

"I thought you were one of his managers."

"Listen. That lad hasn't got any managers. I was one, but I ain't any more, and moreover, I won't be, I'm waiting for the next train that will take me back home."

"What was the trouble?"

"It would take more than between now and train time to tell you. That fellow hasn't got any political brains. I was up all night last week, writing him a speech—the regular speech that used to go big in all the campaigns I've been in. When I showed it to him, he read it, believe it or not, read every line of it, and then he said:

"'But you've made a lot of promises here that I can't carry out. Nobody could carry them out. Don't you realize that I'd be expected to carry them out if I was elected?'

"'Listen,' I said, 'you're new in this game, but you're smart, or any way I think you are, and you can learn. Nobody pays any attention to campaign promises except a few cranks, and they won't bother you after election day. You'll have a secretary to keep them from bothering you.

"'What you've got to do is to let us old hands tell you what kind of promises will get votes, and then go and make them, and take the bows. You just attend to the talking—you're good at that—and we'll get somebody up from headquarters to hand you the speeches. The ones you've been writing ain't sound. You keep talking about not being able to perform impossibilities. That won't make you any votes. Now, don't worry, it will be all right; you just leave that speech with me and I'll leave in it anything that ought to be there, and let one of the bright lads I've brought along fix the rest of it for you.'

"'But,' he says, 'I wouldn't make a speech that somebody else wrote for me.'

"'You wouldn't, hey,' I says. 'Well, smarter guys than you has made 'em and grabbed off big jobs by makin' 'em, and after they was elected they managed to squirm out of 'em, like they all do.'

"'But that wouldn't be honest,' he says.

"'It wouldn't be stealin', or burglarin', would it?'

"'Pretty much the same thing, yes.'

"'Now, what could you do with a bird like that?'

"'Well, what did you do with him?'

"'There wasn't nothing to do, of course, but just let him take the bit in his mouth. And a terrible mess he's made of it.

"'Why, do you know the very next day he told a crowd out in front of the hotel that when he was elected he wanted 'em to come down to the Capitol and tell him if there was anything wrong with the way things was going, and if they had any complaints, and so forth. What do you think of that? After he was elected mind you. He'd listen to 'em after he had the job and didn't need to listen to 'em.

"'I sat down then and tried to have a serious talk with him, and explain that nobody ever took campaigns seriously, and that he was to leave what happened after he was elected to older and wiser heads that had grown gray in politics.

"'He was a little huffy at that, but I thought he could take his medicine, even if it didn't taste good, and set to work tellin' him, as I would tell a little child, what it was all about. And what does he do but turn on his heel and walk off!

"'The next morning I went up to his room, where he was makin' a lot of party leaders—poor old boys past fifty—chuck one of them medicine balls at each other just because he liked to get exercise that way.

"'He was all smiles when he see me, and chucked the ball at me, meanin' to be playful, and it hit me on the ear and hurt. But I was so pleased to think he'd come around to my way of thinking that I didn't say anything till the other boys had gone.

"'Then I said: "Well, I see you ain't mad any more, so I suppose it's all right.'

"'You suppose what's all right?' says he.

"'Why, the quarrel between you and me. I knew you wouldn't take that serious.'

"'No,' he says, 'I didn't take it serious. Here's another speech I wrote this morning.' He handed it to me, and I put on my spectacles to read it, and found he'd said again that when he was elected he was going to be the people's man, and that the first professional politician who came to him to give advice or offer instructions would be chucked out of the window.

"'Well, I just turned on my heel and walked away. Here am I, an' out there is he, givin' a talk to the people about the danger of trick politicians comin' into the offices an' tryin' to influence elected officials, and how, if he was elected, the first thing he'd do would be to try to get to ask for a law makin' attempts to influence an official a felony. A felony! Think of that!'

"'What are you going to do about it?' I inquired, as he paused to catch his breath.

"'Well, the trouble is, we can't do nothing about it. We ain't got nothing on him like we have with a good many of the men we nominate. He ain't made us no promises, which mebbe was our fault, for we thought he'd be so glad to have us tell him what to do that he'd come in askin' for advice every day.

"'It's too late to head him off now, and the worst thing about it is, he's makin' headway, and maybe will get elected in spite of all we can do to stop him, an' that'll be a lot, believe me.

"'Look at him, out there, tellin' 'em he won't make no promises unless he knows he can carry them out, he won't have no boss directin' him in the discharge of his duty to the people, an' he thinks the mandate of the people is more important than the orders of all the political bosses that ever put their heads together in a back room.

"'I suppose we got it comin' to us. We nominated him, because we took it for granted that he'd be a good boy and do what was right. But we have learned our lesson. He'll probably be elected, for he goes good with the crowd, an' he may get renominated—such fellers do, sometimes. But when he quits, an' we put in another man, that man is goin' to be our man, an' he's goin' to admit it in writin' before he gets his name so much as mentioned in the convention hall.'"

A sound of loud cheers came through the open window. The old politician grinned. "He's had business for us," he said. "But I can't help admirin' his nerve, at that."

Record Pilgrimage

Nearly 60,000 men, all ex-soldiers of 15 nations, recently took part in the largest pilgrimage ever made to the shrine of Our Lady of Lourdes at Lourdes, France. Three former enemies stood guard over the famous grotto with one of each of all other countries will make for less hostility and suspicion, and thus remove the greatest fundamental cause of war. But it is possible this influence will not develop rapidly enough to avert another great struggle.

So far from promoting the psychology of peace, expansion of air navigation has until now produced the opposite effect. Every nation in Europe has had its fears and suspicions magnified by the increased possibilities of hostile invasion by air. This is inevitable so long as mankind continues to cling to the theory that force is the right and dominant influence in settling international differences, and also domestic differces, as we see in Russia, Germany, Italy and Spain. With such a mental attitude, every increase in offensive power must add to apprehension and stimulate greater preparation for defense. Yet that does not negative the fact, that more mutual knowledge and understanding is the gateway to world peace, and that this new element, at present arousing fear, will eventually make felt its influence for peace. —St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Airship to Bring About Closer Bond of Unio.

Beginning next July all of the United States and all of Europe will be connected by a maximum air service of 72 hours. That is less time than it now takes the best steamers to go from New York to Liverpool. Plans are being laid for extending air transportation from our Pacific coast to Hawaii and Australia and soon to Asia. Not long thereafter regular air lines will traverse Asia, just as has been shown to be possible from England to Australia by the recent race, and regular round-the-world mail and passenger service will be in full swing. How soon this will be consummated is uncertain, but as air development is now progressing it is safe to predict a maximum limit of five years, with three and even two years as a possibility.

What effect such a close union of the world by transportation and transmission of Intelligence will have upon universal peace must await developments. Theoretically it should be a strong bond of union between the nations and tend to render them common-minded. That has been the effect of improved transportation and more general distribution of news and greater personal contacts between residents of different sections of the United States. Personal acquaintance is the greatest antidote for belligerency. It is fair to assume, that better acquaintance among the nations and a clearer knowledge by the peoples of all countries of those of all other countries will make for less hostility and suspicion, and thus remove the greatest fundamental cause of war. But it is possible this influence will not develop rapidly enough to avert another great struggle.
